

Indiana's Do Not Call List law was one of the best laws ever passed. No more calls while I'm trying to prepare dinner or relax after work from people trying to sell me things I do not need or cannot afford. In the past, those callers would not take a simple "Not interested" and hang-up. They would continue their sales pitch until I hung up. If the call was made by a computer and I hung up, it would continue to call me day after day until I heard the entire message. Live callers often did not update their call lists and someone else from the organization would call me again. My answering machine is no longer filled with junk messages that come in while I am away from home. Now it is so effective when a telemarketer happens to call. I only have to say, "I'm on Indiana's Do Not Call List. Why are you calling me?" and they hang up immediately. No arguments, no "just hear me out". My daughter was getting charged for telemarketer calls to her cell phone. Now that she has that number on the Do Not Call List, those unwanted, costly calls are lessened. Please leave Indiana's Law in place as it is.
